PUBLIC AMUSEMENTS. — Washington Hall.—The Robert Fraser Pantomime Troupe appeared at Washington Hall last evening to a large and appreciative audience. In every respect the company sustained the reputation which preceded them. From beginning to end of the performance the audience were kept in a roar of laughter at the many witty sayings and eccentricities of Robert Fraser, who sustains the character of clown with such perfection that it is not amiss in saying that we consider him one of the finest that has ever appeared before a Wheeling audience. By special request Mr. Fraser has concluded to remain another evening and give all our citizens an opportunity of enjoying his superb performance. We advise all our readers to attend Washington Hall this evening.

The speaker said that it was with great pleasure that she extended a condition of the formal address of the first coming had been anticipated as a season of great profit, and many prayers had been offered for their personal safety, and that they might come to the Convention in the fullness of the Spirit. She bade them welcome, not as strangers, but as members of the same household of faith. She greeted them as honorable women who have labored in the Lord. In closing, the following practical advice was given:

"And now we have met to review the past, and to consider our duties for another year. The machinery of our organization must be kept up, and the plain, practical work be made of the first importance. But I trust above the form and routine of business, the Cross will be upraised; and that we may discern the form of One, "with garments crimson dyed, with his wounded hands uplifted, and the fountain by His side," and receive anew the assurance, "Lo, I am with your slways, even unto the end of tword."

U. S. SUPPLIES.—Major W. W. Miller, commanding the First Battalion West Virginia Militia, has just received from the Government quite an arsenal on a small scale. The Major has the various articles composing the same at his room on Market street, and is now engaged in putting them in order. The tools consist of a neat forge, made of heavy sheet iron, two large tool chest filled with Government vices and the various utensils used in repairing arms, which will obviate the necessity of sending arms to headquarters when in need of repair, and thus save great expense. One of the Gatting guns under charge of the Light Guards was broken at the last parade and rendered unfit for use, and was packed preparatory to shipment to headquarters, but owing to the timely arrival of the arsenal it can now be repaired in this cify. All work will be done under the supervision of Major Miller.

FOND OF PROOS.—A certain lady living in the North Eod has a great abhorence to frogs, and says she would not touch one of them for food if she was compelled to starve. She has a son who is very fond of hunting and fishing. He was out several days ago fishing, and caught a couple of large frogs, which he cleaned and brought home, and told his mother he had brought a squirrel for her. She fixed them up very nicely, and had an elegant meal. No one told her the joke for a couple of days, when she immediately felt sick and says she will never eat another piece of game unless she goes out and sees where it comes from herself.

Wednesday an article charging me with a crime of which I am not guilty, and implicating a lady who I will be able to prove is innocent of the charge containing in the article, I will ask space in your paper to vindicate myself before a discriminating public. Some weeks since I was taken sick at the house of Mrs. Kate Hall, and under the direction of Dr. Campbell, who will substantiate what I say, I was compelled to remain there until I recovered. After I became convalencent I remained some time at the house, regularly paying my boarding, as the children who were witnesses to such payment will testify. While at the house, Mrs. Savery, who was the prime cause of my being placed in my present position before the public, was a constant visitor at Mrs. Hall's, and without permission or authority, was endeavoring to graft into the children's minds a belief in Spiritualism. Deeming such a course morally bad to them, I frequently saddressed Mrs. Savery in terms probably more forcible than eloquent, but not more so than in my judgment seemed justifiable. I, at every opportunity, demanded her ejection from the house. In retailiation of this she and her daughter, Mrs. Snyder, induced the former's husband to make a charge before Justice Wait of fornication. When the case came up before the 'Squire there was no person summoned except myself, no one appearing for the prosecution except Mr. Savery. He was not called upon to testify, but the 'Squire produced adeposition said to have been sworn to by him during the day, but which I did not see, and without further testimony dismissed the case on condition that I discontinue boarding at the house, and putting me into the fine in both cases of $14. I paid this, but immediately consulted Attorney Davenport, who assured me that the fine was unjust, and that the Squire could be made to refund it. I have placed the matter in his hands, and kındly ask the public to stay their verdict until the sflair has been properly handled in a court of justice. erly handled in a court of justice.
